Form: Chorus/Fantasia - Aria (B) - Recit (A) - Duet (A/T) - Recit (S) - Chorale. The underlying chorale appears to have been one of Bach's favorites (see note).

3. S. after Epiphany (BWV 73, 111, 72, 156)

*Romans 12:16-21 (Overcoming evil with good)

*Matthew 8:1-13 (Jesus heals a leper; the centurion from Capernaum comes to Jesus)

Librettist: Unknown

FP: 21 January 1725

(Leipzig: St. Nicholas) This cantata belongs to his chorale cantata cycle (see note).

The alla breve meter & large-scale formal repetitions produce an underlying steadiness and uniformity (enlivened by pervasive use of the figura corta), which reflect the affirmation of the text (more in note).

The cantata's point of departure derives from the day's Gospel reading, in which Jesus agrees to heal. The focus is not on the miracle themselves, however, but on whether they align with God's will: "A leper came to him and knelt before him, saying, 'Lord, if you will, you can make me clean.' And he stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, 'I will....' ... [And] a centurion came forward to him, beseeching him and saying, 'Lord, my servant is lying paralyzed at home, in terrible distress.' And he said to him, 'I will come and heal him.'" Submitting to God's will appears to have been an important life principle for Bach (see notes).

The librettist for the following Sunday (28 January 1725) chose a chorale that employed the same melody—the 12-stanza chorale "Ich hab in Gottes Herz und Sinn," of 1647 by Paul Gerhardt (1607–1676). Whether this duplication was intentional or whether it would have struck composer and congregation as unusual is unclear.

BWV 111 and 92 (performed on consecutive Sundays in 1725) are based on the same chorale melody but on different texts (and in different meters in their first movements).

The text alludes to Jeremiah 30:11 "For I will save you, says the Lord; I will make a full end of all the nations among whom I scattered you, but of you I will not make a full end. I will chasten you in just measure (Luther 1545: züchtigen...mit Maßen), and I will by no means leave you unpunished. (Also Jeremiah 4:27, 5:10, 5:18, 46:28, Ezekiel 20:17.) For this text phrase Bach animates the polyphony with rhythms that depart from the measured rhythm, apparently to reference the words, "chasten with measure" ("i.e., "chasten with moderation")."

92 Chromatic inflection for "chastises with measure."

The B section of the aria alludes to the centurion's declaration of faith in the Gospel reading (that Jesus' word alone is sufficient). Matthew 8:8-9: The centurion answered [Jesus], "Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant will be healed. For I am a man under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes, and to another, 'Come,' and he comes, and to my slave, 'Do this,' and he does it."

Alfred Dürr calls no. 4 "a sonorous, dancelike duet, whose extended string ritornello, with its dotted rhythms and calm continuo pedal-points, illustrates the 'spirited steps' of the text. Occasional harmonic overclouding on words such as 'zum Grabe' ('to the grave') or 'des Todes Bitterkeit' ('death's bitterness') are swiftly dissolved again and serve only to strengthen the impression of joyful determination." See The Cantatas of J. S. Bach, 206.

"Hilf" (to "help") is a keyword, linking back to movement 5.

The last 2 lines are harmonized identically to the Stollen of the chorale's Reprisesbar form; here they provide a sense of finality.

Martin Petzoldt argues that the bass underscores the key petition with a string of moving eighth notes. Then the soprano and bass switch to stolid quarters while the inner voices add harmonic movement to express the theological truth that all divine help and healing are to bring glory to God. See Bach Kommentar 2:483.

The bass underscores the petition with a string of 8ths.
