NBA I/10; BC A61, A171
3. Easter Day and (possibly in an earlier version) Mary's Purification (Candlemas)
3. Easter Day (BWV 134, 145, 158)
*Acts 13:26–33 (Paul preaches of Christ's death and resurrection in synagogue at Antioch)
*Luke 24:36–47 (Jesus appears to disciples in Jerusalem after his resurrection)
Mary's Purification (Candlemas) (BWV 83, 125, 82, 157, 158, [161], [200])
+Malachi 3:1–4 (The Lord will suddenly come to his temple and purify his people)
+Luke 2:22–32 (Mary presents Jesus at the temple; Nunc Dimittis)
FP: Composed probably in Leipzig period, before 1735, perhaps 27 April 1734 (Leipzig: St. Nicholas). See note for more background.

Martin Petzoldts outlines the symmetrical form of the cantata with 3 levels (Bach-Kommentar 2:757):
In the world as a child of peace (3b)
Hope for peace (2 & 3b)
Basis of peace (1 & 4)
He outlines the disposition of the movements:
3a. B recit. Dying in peace
2. B aria & S chorale. — 3b. B arioso. In heavenly peace and quiet — Crowned with heavenly crowns
1. B recit. — 4. Chorale.
Cancelled promissary note — Protective inscription

J.S. Bach
Cantata No. 158
Der Friede sei mit dir

Cantata for bass (possibly incomplete, with some parts originating in an earlier work for Purification) blending Easter / Nunc dimittis.

No. 1. Recitativo

•Peace offered by Christ to troubled conscience (158/1).

158/1. Secco

Basso

Chromatic saturation in the vocal part in 11 mm.

Very Small Instrumentation:
Oboe
Violin solo
SB
Continuo

The recitative is replete with references to biblical verses and themes, beginning with Jesus' words to his disciples after his resurrection as recorded in the Gospel reading (see note).

While the recitative is basically secco, Christ's greeting, "Peace be with you" (plural in the original) serves as a recurring, unifying thread in arioso style (the last statements combined in a longer arioso). Intervening lines elaborate on the implications of this peace with allusions to various biblical passages (see note opposite).

For word-for-word English translations, see Unger, Handbook to Bach's Sacred Cantata Texts.

Nº 2. Aria mit Choral

(Andante espressivo)

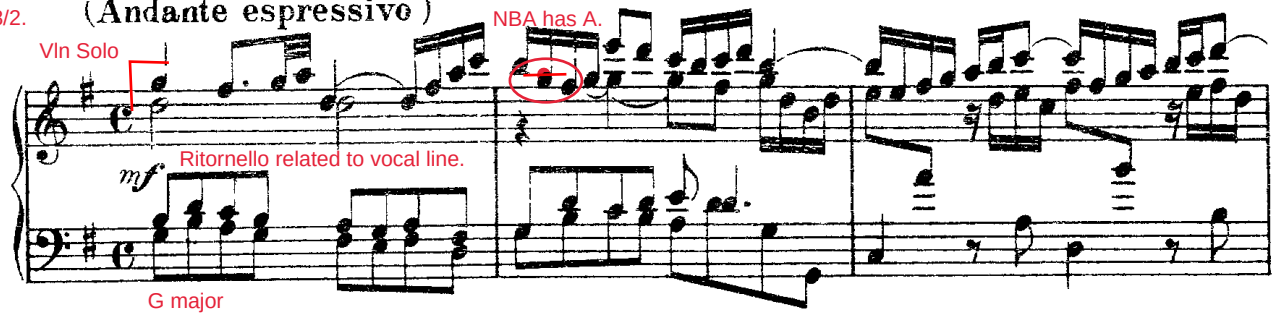
158/2.

(Perhaps from an earlier work) ●Farewell given to world, heaven's splendor preferred (158/2).

NBA has A.

Vln Solo

The cantabile obbligato suggests influence of the pre-Classical style.



This movement alludes to the canticle of Simeon ("Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace"), providing a tenuous connection to the previous movement. Simeon's canticle is part of the Gospel reading for Purification, which leads to the supposition that this movement originated in an earlier work for Purification.

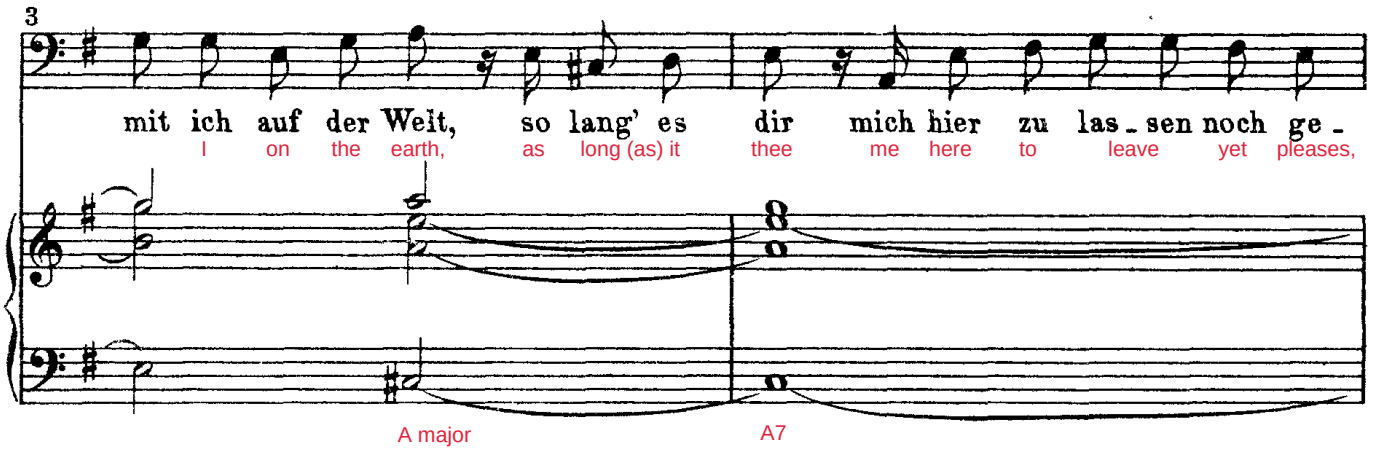
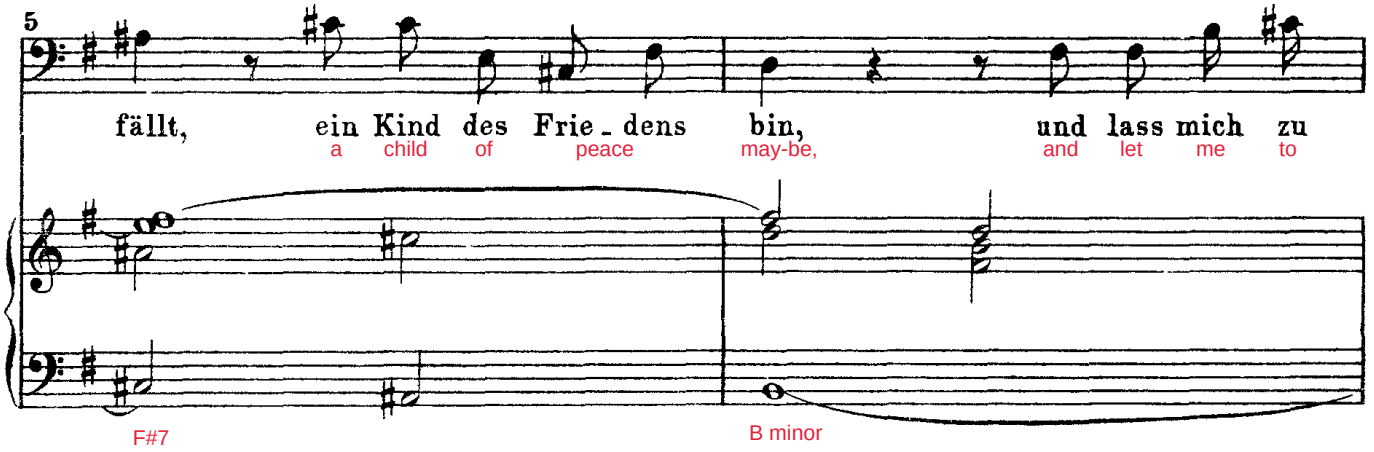
The recitative portion of this movement alludes to the canticle of Simeon (“Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace”), which is part of the Gospel reading for Purification. It is likely that the recitative originated in an earlier work for Purification, with the arioso added when the material was re-purposed for Easter 3. As the central section in a symmetrical form, the recitative 3a summarizes the crux of the matter: to live and die as a Child of Peace.

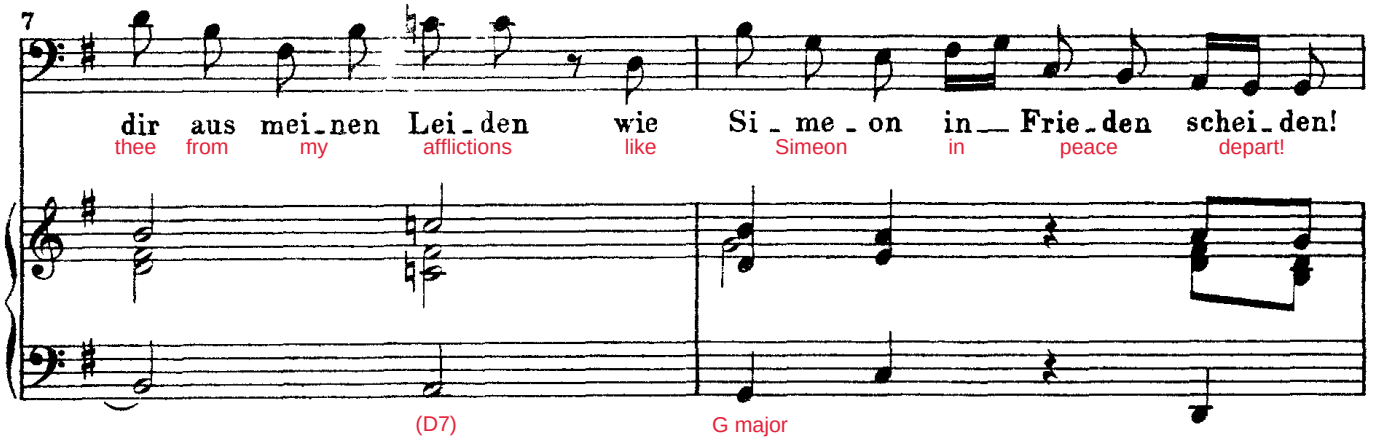
No. 3. Recitativo (Perhaps from an earlier work) ●Prayer: May I be a child of peace until I enter heaven (158/3).

158/3a.

The recitative is replete with references to biblical passages and themes (see note).







Alfred Dürr notes that in the arioso the "text—and, by allusion, its music too—refers back to the second movement [mm. 58–94], a phenomenon that we encounter in several Bach cantatas that originated around 1726: for example, in the Kreuzstab Cantata BWV 56." See The Cantatas of J. S. Bach, revised and translated by Richard Jones (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2005), p. 290. The theory is that Bach added this arioso when adapting an earlier work.

Arioso

In this musical allusion to movement 2, the obbligato line and chorale do not appear.

158/3b.

This is the fifth verse of seven in the 1524 Easter chorale “Christ lag in Todes Banden” by Martin Luther. It employs the bible's metaphorical language of Christ as the paschal lamb, with allusions to the Passover-Exodus account (see note for relevant biblical passages).
